THE COUNTRY OF THE PASSION-PLAY:

The Highlands and Highlanders of Babaria.

By L. G. SEGUIN, Author of "The Black Forest," "Walks in Algiers," &c.

With a Route Map and Forty Illustrations.

EXTRACT FROM THE PREFACE.

"It is hoped that this work will induce some few holiday-makers out of the great 'many' who are turning their thoughts and footsteps in the direction of Ober-Ammergau not to make that now famous village the sole goal of their pilgrimage, but persuade them rather to continue their explorations into the very attractive district of which the Ammergau is but the gate or the outpost.

"By far the greater number of those who attended former representations of the Passion-Play made a mere excursion of a day or more from Munich for the purpose, and returned artistically satisfied, it may be, and full of praise of the simple manners and earnest faces of the dwellers in the Highland vale, but probably without the smallest idea that some of the most beautiful scenery to be found in Europe had been within a few hours' reach of them."

London: STRAHAN & Co. (LIMITED), 34, Paternoster-row.

DR. GORDON HAKE'S NEW POEMS.

Small 4to, cloth extra, price 8s.

MAIDEN ECSTASY.

By THOMAS GORDON HAKE, the Author of "Parables and Tales," "New Symbols," "Legends of the Morrow," &c.

"Dr. Hake holds a separate position in modern poetic literature, of which, indeed, he is an interesting phenomenon. The 'Betrothed,' the 'Heartbroken,' the 'Self-conscious'—self-conscious of new-awakened passion—these are subjects with which Dr. Hake deals sympathetically and in the manner of a 'subtle-souled psychologist.'"—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE PEN.

WITHOUT any disposition to underrate existing Literary journals, the founders of The Pen believe that there is a distinct place for a new paper such as that which they now submit to the judgment of the public.

The Reviewers in The Pen include some of the best writers of the day; they will never praise what is not good for the sake of being pleasant, nor blame what is meritorious for the sake of being smart; and they will interweave with their conscientious criticism such full quotation of the representative passages of important works as will make the paper a permanently interesting reflex of English Literature. The Pen will also contain light Essays on Literary subjects, Biographies of Living Authors, Verses, Literary Table Talk, and Drawings reproduced from illustrated books.
